

CELEBRATING OUR

2020 GRADUATES

Alpha Delta Phi Society

---

Congratulations to the class of 2020! Let me start with this: I am deeply proud of you. Graduating college this year was nothing short of remarkable. I know I'm not the first to say this, and I certainly won't be the last, but you will always be remembered as the class that graduated during a global pandemic. But these feelings of uncertainty may be more familiar to you than they would have been for me. Your journey through college has been shaped by the last four years of national division, cruelty, and cowardice. Alongside this, you chose a different path, seeking to improve your whole self – moral, social, and intellectual. Whether or not you feel transformed, you are now empowered to make your mark in the wider world. Looking around at that world today, it is clear: it needs your wisdom, your caring, and your help.

I know this hasn't been the kind of spring semester we wanted. You had to say goodbye too soon, too suddenly, to some of the most important people in your life. I won't try to sugarcoat that, and I grieve with you. But although your college days are over, the Phi will always be there for you. The Alpha Delta Phi is a lifelong experience, so the poem goes, and I find it truer every passing year. Out in the world, you will find siblings from every chapter, excited to meet you, to help you, to dive into unguarded conversation, to keep moving forward in self-discovery. You remain connected: to your classmates, to generations before, and to those who will come next. I congratulate you, and I welcome you to the next chapter.
